CIRCULATING THROUGHOUT THE VAST AGRICULTURAL AREA OF PALM BEACH COUNTY

County Welfare Load Will Increase To Nearly Half Million $ For Next Year

(Editor's Note: In a recent issue of the Palm Beach Post-Times there appeared an article by Staff Writer Ed Pfister which will be of interest to every person in the Lake Okechobee Region. Mr. Pfister's article was prepared by him after diligent study of the 1949-50 Palm Beach County budget and after he had consulted with members of the county commission. We are reprinting it this week and want him and the Post-Times to have full credit for its preparation. It is a thorough article and makes timely reading.)

Palm Beach County in the next 12 months is going to lay out nearly a cool half million dollars for the support of the aged, the needy and children from inadequate homes, according to the board of commissioners.

Many of those aged and needy admittedly were until very recently residents of other states and Florida.

Scores of those children, juvenile records indicate, are offspring of irresponsible husbands and wives who hardly waited until they could rent an apartment before casting aside any pretense of attempting to support a family.

It begins to look, informed sources say, as if the stable resident who is willing to earn his way is also going to pay the freight to give a merry ride to a segment of the population which believes the country owes it a living and Palm Beach County is as good a place as anywhere else to start collecting.

Tripled In 10 Years

This viewpoint is supported by a comparison of the welfare appropriation in the county budget for ten years ago and today. Ten years ago it cost the county $132,471 for welfare work. In the next 12 months the county expects to spend $448,220, as stipulated in the recently adopted budget.

All of this, of course, is aside from the so-called aid or assistance extended by other agencies, such as the Community Chest, the Salvation Army, the Red Cross and a score of other unofficial groups largely sponsored by well meaning citizens.

And all of it is a matter of record which any taxpayer can check. The welfare load is constantly increasing, county officials admit, and like the average citizen, they have no idea where it is going to stop.

Citizens Puzzled

Citizens as individuals and in groups have looked recently with puzzlement at the constantly increasing bureau budgets. They have been particularly perturbed by the heights to which welfare figures are soaring. They want something of an answer to this question.

"If the welfare cost has more than tripled during a ten-year period in which the county, like the rest of the State and the nation has enjoyed the greatest prosperity in history, what's going to happen when times get bad?"

This reporter set out to see if he could find something resembling an answer. He talked at length with members of the County Commission, studied present and past budgets, listened to explanations, analyses and deductions. Some of the information is particularly interesting.

Prosperity Adds To Burden

For example, County Commission Chairman Lake Lytal said that in one respect, prosperity adds to the burden of the county. When times are bad, young families take in aged members of their group in order to have access to the small pensions received by the older persons. When times are good, they don't need the money. They send the aged person out on his own.

The aged person, of course, continues to receive a pension. In most cases it ranges up to $50. Possible enough to take out a bare subsistence but usually inadequate for an emergency—for sickness, for hospitalization. The county has no recourse but to provide this service. In some cases it augments the pensions of the aged, rather than take on the burden of wholly supporting them at the county home.

State Also Helps

That's true even if the pension is being paid by the State of Florida. The State pays up to $50. If a time arrives when the pensioner is no longer able to adequately handle a pension check, the county is directed to place the pensioner in a nursing home or the county home. If the county does so, the State pension check stops. The whole cost is thrown on the county.

The primary function for which the County Commission was originally created was to set up and maintain a system of county roads and to care for the aged and the indigent. It's that care for the aged and the indigent, records show, that has mushroomed into a half million dollar proposition, only about $8,000 per year less than the cost of the whole county road system.

County Home, Hospital

Right now there are 63 men and women in the county home for whites. There are, in addition, 43 in the county home for negroes. The number in the hospital changes. There are 100 in the county children's home—one for white children, one for negroes. The new negro detention home was only recently completed at a cost of about $70,000.

In addition to the children in the county home system, 12 more are in a receiving home and 14 are in foster homes throughout the county. At one time the county had 112 children under its care.

Where do these aged, these aged ill, the non-working indigent who need all kind of service, this host of children come from?

It's some of the answers to these questions which provide the surprises.

Any aged or indigent person who can prove he or she has been a resident of Palm Beach County for a single year is entitled to relief.

Don't Have To Be Voter

They don't have to be a voter. They don't have to take an oath of citizenship. They must prove only that they have been residents for one year and are either too old or too ill to work.

The situation as regards children is as astonishing. An irresponsible couple might arrive in Palm Beach County in August, break up in September and have their brood supported indefinitely thereafter by the county.

Case For Children

The county does take particular steps to care for children, and the County Commission admits it. It goes all out to see that these children are removed from undesirable environments or influences. It attempts, while it has the children under care, to start them on the road to responsible citizenship.

In either event, the Palm Beach County taxpayer is accepting a burden shunted here by other States. Of course, a large portion of the relief load is provided by natives. But the very fact that a one year residence in Palm Beach County will entitle a person to relief if needed, appears to make the area a haven for those in other States.

Right after the war it was brought out by US employment figures that the resort aspect of this section had attracted a large number of individuals who were drawing unemployment checks. Why battle ice and snow when you could get the same subsistence on the Florida Southeast Coast?

Officials Puzzled

There's a suspicion among county officials that the same theory is working so far as the aged and indigent are concerned. The hard-working Palm Beach County resident who pays his way is beginning to balk at the idea of four or five other persons taking advantage of his contribution without being entitled to it.

County officials, everybody else, practically, agree that this is the kind of a situation that is evolving.

And Florida, because of its mild climate, and the East Coast, because it is the best, is drawing many of those who will eventually go on relief rolls, like molasses draws so many flies.

Tighter Regulations

More stringent regulations governing residence and more vigorous prosecution for errant parents would help relieve the situation, members of the County Commission agree. They also believe a law that compelled children with means to support their parents would be as beneficial as laws which require parents to support their offspring.

Meantime, they point to a breakdown of the welfare or relief budget for the coming year.

"Here it is," they say, "which one would you stop, and how?" The figures:

Which One Would You Eliminate?

County home and hospital, $115,056; white and negro children's detention homes, $72,119; welfare expenses, including salaries, transportation, temporary emergency pensions, direct relief, like grocery orders, medicine, medical care, clinics, $92,000; hospitalization—funds paid directly to Glades and West Palm Beach hospitals for county patients, $60,000; pauper burials, $3,000; tuberculosis aid, $25,000, paid directly to State sanitariums for care of county victims; county health unit, $56,000, also supported by State contributions; mother's pensions, $7,155, for offspring borne out of wedlock; State probation and parole, $6,480; paid directly to the State for the county office; juvenile probation and parole, $7,800; juvenile judge, $3,600.

New Teachers For Pahokee School

Principal C. A. Canipe reports there will be several new faces among the faculty at Pahokee Schools when school opens on Sept. 6.

Leland G. Keene, who graduated from the University of Florida on July 26 with a bachelor of arts degree in education, will join the faculty as social studies instructor, assistant coach and junior high physical education director.

Miss Evans, daughter of Col and Mrs. Evans, Cypress Lodge, Port Mayaca, who is a graduate of the University of North Carolina, will be a new English instructor and have charge of the study hall.

Miss Clowe of Lake Worth, graduate of Florida State University, Tallahassee, will teach Spanish and English.

Miss Julia Beackman, graduate of Florida State University, will be the new director of physical education for girls.

Mrs. Herbert Miller will act as secretary to Principal Canipe.

At the elementary school there will be a new teacher for one of the fourth grade rooms, Mr. Canipe said.

CIRCLE MEET

The Mary Martha Circle, First Methodist WSCS, met at the home of Mrs. John E. Wilson Monday night with Mrs. Carmen Salvatore, Jr., assisting as co-hostess. Mrs. J. T. Boynton presided at the business in the absence of the president, Mrs. Charles Kennen, and presented the mission study program.

Palm Beach County Is First In Many Things

Statistics reveal that Palm Beach County is first in the State of Florida in several ways.

It is the largest county in Florida in total area.

It has the greatest per capita wealth.

It leads all Florida counties in the production of vegetables by a wide margin.

It is ranked first among the entire nation's leading vegetable producing counties.

It ships about one-sixth of the nation's green snap beans.

Palm Beach County ships Twenty-two different vegetables in carload lots.

It is the first county in production of ramie and has the only large commercial decortication factory of domestic ramie in America.

Its sands in places on the ridge section of the coast have glass producing qualities.

Tropical fruits can best be grown on the ridge lands of the coastal area of Palm Beach County.

It is rapidly forging ahead in beef cattle production. A single acre of high protein grass grown in the Everglades section will fatten a steer for market.

The major portion of all first quality Everglades lands are located in Palm Beach County—authentic soil surveys reveal.

How To Get Help From The National Foundation For Infantile Paralysis —When Polio Strikes

1. At the first sign of illness, call your own doctor. If he suspects polio he will report the case to the local Health Department and arrange for hospitalization or home care, as indicated. The National Foundation does not select physicians or hospitals. This is a family matter. If you have no family physician, call your City or County Medical Society, your Board of Health or the nearest hospital.

2. If your doctor says it is polio and requires hospitalization, the local Chapter of the National Foundation will help arrange for transportation to a treatment center. As soon as the patient goes to the hospital—or if your doctor advises the patient can be treated at home—get in touch with your Chapter of the National Foundation to arrange for any needed assistance.

a. Most Chapters are listed in the telephone book under N for National Foundation, I for Infantile Paralysis and the letter starting the name of the county you live in, i. e., Washington County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. If you can't find it—check with your doctor, hospital or Health Department.

b. Your Chapter will get in touch with you as soon as it learns of the case through your physician, the hospital or the Health Department. However, late reporting or a heavy hospital load may delay this Chapter contact. If you do not hear promptly, telephone or visit your Chapter representative. You can ease your own worries sooner by making the approach yourself.

3. The Chapter representative will notify the hospital that it is arranging with you for full or partial payment of expenses for medical care. Adults are as eligible for help as are children. Discuss with your Chapter how much of the full bill the Chapter will pay.

a. March of Dimes funds are used to help the medically indigent—but this is not the same as "indigent;" it includes families of moderate income, who cannot meet the high costs of modern care of this expensive disease. The help is a gift—not a loan. While families that can pay are expected to do so, no family is expected to impoverish itself to meet medical expenses for polio.

b. Even if you can assume full costs for initial hospitalization, it is a good idea to see your Chapter. If yours should be a patient who is severely affected—and this cannot be determined in the first few days—you may need help later on. Bills incurred in the weeks before your Chapter assumes financial responsibility cannot be paid months afterward, but the Chapter will step in at whatever time you really need help. Have a frank, friendly talk with your Chapter representative at the beginning.

4. Chapters pay for hospitalization, professional services including nursing and physical therapy, transportation to and from hospitals, convalescent centers and clinics, treatment after hospitalization and appliances such as wheelchairs, braces, etc., as needed. There are no hard and fast rules. Each case is decided upon individual medical and financial needs. Assistance is given regardless of age, race, creed or color. More than 110,000 polio patients were directly assisted in full or in part up to the end of 1948.

5. In addition, your Chapter can put you in touch with proper sources for nursing and physical therapy at home, can refer you to rehabilitation and vocational training agencies, will provide literature designed to foster better understanding of infantile paralysis—so you will know what to expect and how to help your polio patient back to a useful life.

These services are made possible by the March of Dimes each January.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

(By Russell Kay)

Statistics bore me as a rule but now and then I run into a mess of figures that are informative, easy to understand and downright interesting.

I found them in the current bulletin of the Florida Publicity and Public Relations Association and they deal with 1948 tourist travel.

Two things impressed me in this report. One was that Florida tied California in 1948 with a travel income of $700,000,000. The other was that New York State, not generally thought of as a tourist state, topped the nation with a travel income of a billion dollars. Pennsylvania was high on the list with $600,000,000 while Michigan and Maine trailed with $500,000,000 and $115,000,000, respectively.

Thanks to the effective work of the Florida State Advertising Commission and such able independent advertisers and publicists as Dick Pope of Cypress Gardens, Peter Schaaf of Silver Springs, the railroads, bus lines and many chambers of commerce, Florida is being publicized today as never before.

Another interesting fact in regard to 1948 Florida tourist travel is its spread to all sections of the state. For a great many years the bulk of such travel was over U. S. Highway No. 1 to Miami, but last year the west coast area had the best season in its history while the beaches and resorts of northwest Florida boomed.

Interesting also is the steady increase shown in summer travel to this state. People are beginning to learn that Florida has as much to offer as a summer playground as she has in winter. More and more folks are coming to Florida for their summer vacation and returning North to tell others about our air-conditioned summer climate, our cool nights, wonderful bathing, boating and fishing, and the delights and pleasures that attend a visit to such attractions as Silver Springs, Cypress Gardens, Weekwachee Springs, Marineland and others.

Seven hundred million dollars is a lot of money for any state to have dumped into its lap, and Florida, tied for second place with California in the national scramble for tourist dollars, is indeed in an enviable position.

We should watch our step and see to it that nothing is done that will curtail this lucrative business and every effort should be made to provide facilities that will hold and expand tourist business.

Unfortunately, many citizens fail to appreciate what these tourist dollars mean to us and cannot visualize the serious situation we would be in without them. Some folks look on tourists as nuisances, they take up parking spaces, cause prices to rise, fill hotels, tourist courts and restaurants and generally annoy the year round resident.

You hear folks say, "Oh, tourists are all right for the folks who cater to them, but they don't help my business, etc." If the taxpayer who reasons like that were to suddenly have the tax money cut off that tourists are now paying and was called upon to pay the difference from his own pocket you would hear a howl that would be ear-splitting.

And that brings on more statistics. In a breakdown of state income, published recently in the Tampa Morning Tribune, we learn that motorists paid $42,800,000 to the state in the form of gasoline taxes and another $16,000,000 in license tag costs—a total of $58,800,000 paid by one class of taxpayers. Liquor drinkers paid $21,400,000 and cigarette smokers $12,300,000, while race track followers contributed another $12,200,000 to the state jackpot. All other types of taxpayers paid in only $12,200,000.

So if you will mull those figures around in your mind for a little bit you will realize where we would be if all the tax revenue we receive from tourists for gasoline, cigarettes, liquor and racing were curtailed. We really nick them plenty and what they pay represents just that much more that you and I as taxpayers are not paying now but would have to pay if it were not for our annual visitors.

The motorist in this state is paying far more than his share of the load and the money he pays should rightfully go toward the building and maintenance of highways and bridges. Too much of it is now being diverted to other purposes, and if we do not watch our step this day will come when we will find ourselves with a worn-out and dilapidated road system with no money to rebuild it. When that happens it will be "good bye" to a large percentage of our profitable and income-producing tourist business, so it is something to think about.

Another thing we must be careful about is increasing the tax burden on tourists. If we deliberately highjack them with taxes they will drift away from us favoring other areas that treat them more kindly.

Ever been faced with some problem that had you all tied up in knots mentally and physically? We all get in that shape now and then. It is a disease and a deadly one, although most folks don't seem to realize it. We call it worry.

It is probably responsible for more illness, unhappiness and untimely death than any other one thing. The unfortunate victim finds little relief. The physician's pills and powders give only temporary aid. A bottle of liquor may blot out the anguish for a time, but until the deep rooted problem is solved and the mind is freed of its burden the unfortunate worrier may become a physical wreck.

How many times the expression "Don't worry," has been used, no one knows. It's as common as expression as "How you doin'?" or "I'll be sear'n' you." And means just about as much to the recipient. All the world is ready with a back slap and admonition, "Don't worry," but up until a short time ago nobody could actually tell you how to perform the feat.

Then along came my friend Dale Carnegie, the chap who taught us "How to Win Friends and Influence People," with a text book entitled, "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living."

Receiving an autographed copy from the author, I've been reading it in my spare time and find that while most of the information it contains is already known and has been told to us over and over again by thinkers and philosophers since the beginning of time, it took Dale Carnegie to assemble it in a text book that actually permits a person to put such sound advice into practice.

As we have been told again and again, most of the things we worry about never happen, and to impress this fact upon his readers, Dale gives numerous illustrations of people who have worried themselves deathly ill over just such a situation. Unlike most books it does not content itself with generalities. In citing such cases, Dale has been particular to give the person's name and address, pointing out this or that person and his or her actual experience with names, dates and addresses that can be checked and verified.

Millions of people worry over something that has already happened, a situation they are powerless to change. Carnegie tells how a college professor impressed this fact on his class one day by placing a bottle of milk on his desk, then quietly going about his teaching of a subject that apparently had nothing whatever to do with milk. Then suddenly and without warning he reached over and with one blow knocked the bottle from the desk. It crashed on the floor, milk running down the aisle. Ignoring the mess he continued with the lesson as though nothing had happened. Then he explained that his purpose was to impress them with the fact that it is useless to "cry over spilled milk." You can pick up the pieces of broken glass, mop up the floor, but you can't do anything about the milk. It is doubtful if a single member of that class can remember what the subject was they were studying that day, but no doubt everyone still remembers the lesson they learned from that broken milk bottle. All of them, even as you, and I, had heard the expression, "Don't cry over spilled milk," many many times, but it took the violent action of the deliberate smashing of the milk bottle to impress its meaning on their minds.

A lot of other folks turn to the future for their worries, which Dale tells us is as silly and unprofitable as turning to the past. To illustrate this he digs up the time honored admonition, "Don't cross your bridges until you come to them."

He tells us that it isn't good sense to worry about either the past or the future. Our only concern should be today, the present, as that is the only period of time we are able to use effectively. He advises us to block off both the past and the future and make the most of today.

Work, while apparently becoming less and less popular, is given as one of the best antidotes for worry. Dale explained that the mind can be occupied with one thing at a time. If you give it work to do and keep it occupied with constructive thoughts it cannot be invaded by worry. To improve his point he asked the reader to try and think of two things at once; for example, a woman filling a thermos jug and a man drinking a bottle of Coke. Try it yourself and see if you can do it. You can think of and visualize either one but not both at the same time.

Whether you are a worrier or not, you will find "How to Stop Worrying and Start Living" by Dale Carnegie both interesting and profitable reading. You won't get much out of it if you skim through it and forget it, but if you take your time and think while you read, it has the power to change your entire life and bring you health and happiness.

If you start collecting these three faces today, they can send your son to college.

For these are the faces that appear on three of the U. S. Savings Bonds. Cleveland on the $100 bond. Jefferson on the $50 bond. Washington on the $25 bond.

Collect one, two, three of these bonds every payday, and you'll have the money you need (in years ahead) to send your son to college. Or take your wife on trips. The money you need to buy that house, that boat, that second car.

For the money you put into U. S. Savings Bonds has a pleasing habit of making more money for you. At the end of ten years, when Bonds mature, you'll find that you collect four dollars for every three dollars you've put aside. And since they are backed by the government of the United States, it is the safest investment any man could make.

The most wonderful part of it all, though, is the fact that you hardly miss the money you're saving when you join one of the two Automatic Savings Bonds Plans. For these two plans are painless, completely automatic. Your bank or place of business handles all the details.

So start making good friends with those three very famous gentlemen whose pictures appear on U. S. Savings Bonds.

Cinematic Chatter

By Malcolm Millar

It starts as an innocent affair and winds up as the surprise romantic comedy of the year. "An innocent affair", which is scheduled for the Prince Theatre, Sunday - Monday, stars Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll, with Charles, Buddy Rogers and Rita Johnson heading the supporting cast.

WOW! What an affair! Not so innocent either not when he saw a gorgeous brunette and she spited him with a rich, handsome stranger. No sah... from that point on business picked up in the life of MacMurray, and he found himself diving in and out of some of the most complicated scenes that have ever been placed in a motion picture.

But, I'm not going to tell you the plot now. You'll have to see it through your self... I don't want to spoil some of the surprise scenes that you are going to see when you sit this one out.

I will say, however, this is one of the funniest comedies that I have ever seen with the stars above named. It will have you in stitches from it's very beginning. See you at the movies—Mal.

Duck Hunters Get An Extra 10 Days

TALLAHASSEE—The U. S. Department of Interior tacked an additional 10 days to Florida's duck hunting season but shortened the dove shoot by 15 days, Coleman Newman, State Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission director, announced this week.

Federal migratory fowl regulations also disclose that bag limits are the same as last year except two Canada geese can be taken each day instead of one. Hunting will be permitted every day during the season.

The duck, goose and coot season will extend from Nov. 29 to Jan. 7. They may be shot from one-half hour before sunrise to one hour before sunset. On opening day, waterfowl and coot may not be hunted prior to 12 o'clock noon.

Mourning dove shooting dates are from Dec. 17 to Jan. 15. Dade, Broward and Monroe Counties, in the Fourth District, will be confined to a season beginning Oct. 1 and continuing to Oct. 30. Shooting hours will be from 12 o'clock noon until sunset.

The marsh hen season was set for Oct. 1 to Nov. 30.

Daily bag limits of migratory birds are: ducks, 4; geese, 2; coots, 15; doves, 10; and marsh hens, 15. Possession is limited to a two-day bag limit on ducks while the rest have a one day bag possession limit.

The State Game Commission may shorten the Federal hunting season on migratory birds but cannot increase it, Newman said. It usually adopts the Federal dates.

Christian Science Society

CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"MIND" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, August 21.

The Golden Text is: "Who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor?" (Romans 11:34).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Fear thou not; for I am with thee: be not dismayed; for I am the God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." Isa. 41:10.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the "Christian Science textbook, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures,' by Mary Baker Eddy: "The law of the divine Mind must end human bondage, or mortals will continue unaware of man's inalienable rights and in subjection to hopeless slavery, because some public teachers permit an ignorance of divine power, — an ignorance that is the foundation of continued bondage and of human suffering. . . . Christian Science raises the standard of liberty and cries: 'Follow me! Escape from the bondage of sickness, sin, and death!' " (227:7, 21-23).

AUXILIARY LEADER OUTLINES ACTIVITIES FOR COMING YEAR

Five major activities which will occupy much of the attention of the American Legion Auxiliary during the coming year were outlined by Mrs. Dannelly, Unit President, at a special meeting of the Auxiliary's membership campaign workers at the Legion Home yesterday.

Declaring that the need for increased efforts in these fields was urgent, Mrs. Maxson urged the membership workers to carry information about them to all eligible women in the city. She outlined the major Auxiliary activities as:

1. Service to war veterans and their families.
2. Welfare of children of veterans.
3. Projects to help make the community a better place in which to live.
4. Support of the American Legion's national security program to give the United States greater protection from war.
5. Americanism work to maintain the ideals and principals of free government in America.

"These activities will form the backbone of the Auxiliary's program during the year ahead," said Mrs. Maxson. "The need for all of them is urgent. More active interest in them by more women is vitally important. In the Canal Point Unit of the Auxiliary there is opportunity for worthwhile service in any or all of these fields. I hope that more of the wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of war veterans will avail themselves of this opportunity this year."

Barbara Brown Honored At Shower

Mrs. E. E. Conner entertained at the Canal Point Legion Hall on Wednesday afternoon of last week with a party and shower in compliment to Miss Barbara Ann Brown, former Canal-Point resident, now living in West Palm Beach, who will become the bride of George Dale Welch of Vero Beach on Sept. 5.

The hall was beautifully decorated for the affair and many lovely gifts were received by the honoree. Games were enjoyed and refreshments were served by the hostess to approximately 30 guests.
